PASTOR'S CORNER

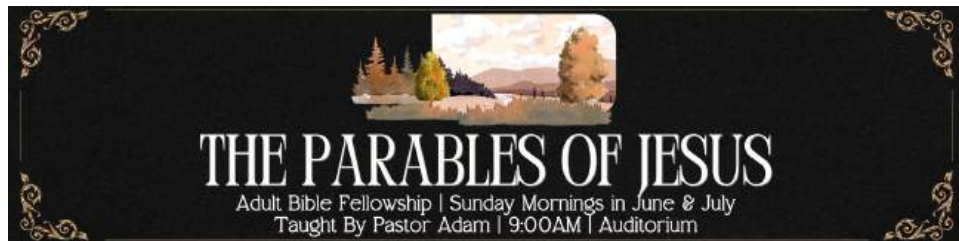

"What's Wrong With The World? Part I" | Adam King, Associate Pastor

"What's Wrong With The World?" by G.K. Chesterton, ranks as one of my top three titles for a book. The book itself is dated in some ways because he addresses issues current to his time, yet because he is thoroughly Biblical, it is also timeless.

We need more Christians who are willing to do the work necessary to answer that question. We know the answer in the shortest form: sin. But to be a Christian is not just to intellectually know the answer, but to know how sin works in our own heart, how it works in those closest to us, and to see how it works in this world.

Some people avoid the task because they think it's morbid to think deeply about sin. But the most basic definition of morbid is "unwholesome." What could be more unwholesome than to ignore what is really wrong with the world? Until our deepest problem is addressed we will be like those who pass by the man in Jesus's parable of the good Samaritan. It is a merciful and neighborly thing to first understand our own sin and to try and begin to understand how sin leaves those without Christ stripped, beaten, and half dead. (Luke 10:30)
